

Manifesto!

suisun valley

Jamey Whetstone, Winemaker: "Manifesto! has taken a sort of Ben & Jerry's approach to wine-making; we're about truth in product, truth in advertising. Henri Gabriel and I founded Manifesto! on the premise that we would identify and work with a handful of growers to produce great wine without charging a whole lot of money. We wanted to make wine that tasted like what's in the grape, not like something that has passed through the kidneys of a beaver. Too many wines these days have too much wood. We asked two friends, gurus in the food industry, to help us pioneer Manifesto! and together, as a fearsome foursome, we have introduced America to our food-friendly, environmentally-conscious wine. In addition to making great wine, we wanted to do something ground-breaking while keeping the fun in it."

MANIFESTO! SAUVIGNON BLANC

This fresh and vibrant declaration of Sauvignon Blanc was fermented on the lees in stainless steel, racked clean and bottled seven months after harvest... ZERO oak since "you don't need a cord of wood every time you have a swallow of wine!"

A welcome departure from history's more infamous manifestos, Manifesto! Sauvignon Blanc never seeks to dominate, complementing a wide variety of foods as well as a broad range of non-political conversations. Unlike the Communist Manifesto, this Sauvignon Blanc exists in the real world; unlike the Dadaist Manifesto, it makes sense. The easy price point means a speedy death to unhappy disenfranchisement everywhere!

MANIFESTO! CABERNET SAUVIGNON

Think big, ripe, dark cherries with a touch of sweet tobacco... oops! Don't let anyone tell you what to think — heck, that's a core principle of our enlightened Manifesto!

Thank you for your time and for your interest in Connoisseur wines.
